

Birds Going Walking

Watch out for some creative mask making efforts featuring in a 'Birds Go Walking' parade on Sunday.

As part of the Eketahuna weekend festival, school children will don their handiwork to take part in a 1pm walk from Pukaha Mt Bruce to New Pacific Studio.

Their colourful efforts emerged from a workshop tutored by Berlin artist Marina Pruefer and Dr Kay Flavell and creativity flowed.

Julia Davis aged 10 liked making her bird mask because it "felt like I was two people." "There was a lot of jungle music on the stereo and I felt like I was in the jungle."

"I liked making my mask because I love art. I made my mask colourful because I liked the colours I used and I did it all by myself," said Trent Skeet aged nine.

Julia summed up – "I wish Kay and Marina came every day."

The class would probably agree.